The black music master, by F. A. Clark; a fascinating, but truthful setting forth of facts, giving indisputable evidence that the primitive black peoples were the first natural musicians who, in unconscious obedience to great natural laws within them, did crudely and awkwardly, but none the less certainly give to the world, the earliest practical demonstration of making music! viii, 214 p. illus. (port.). 25^m.

Group portrait on lining paper.
The debate over the adoption of the Constitution of the Virginia Assembly, led by Madison and Henry; the debate over the Fugitive slave law in Congress between Webster and Haynes; and the joint debate over the issue growing out of the slavery question between Lincoln and Douglas, together with Lincoln's second inaugural address, Henry W. Grady's speech before the New England society, Dec. 22, 1861, and a speech consisting of a compilation from various addresses of Henry Clay, all brought together in one great debate having for its subject: Shall the state or the central government rule?

Cleveland, John, 1722-1799.

An attempt to nip in the bud, the unsriptural doctrine of universal salvation, and some other dangerous errors connected with it; which a certain stranger, who calls himself John Murray, has, of late, been endeavoring to spread in the First parish of Gloucester, to draw away disciples after him. In a letter addressed to one of those that are drawn away; if possible to reclaim him and the others. To this end and in hopes that it may by the blessing of God serve also to confirm all in some of the most important doctrines of God's word, it is made pub-
